Agricultural Economics Bibliography No. 38

LIST OF STATE OFFICIAL SERIAL PUBLICATIONS CONTAINING MATERIAL ON AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS

Compiled by Esther M. Colvin

Bureau of Agricultural Economics

Washington, D. C.
July, 1932

FOREWORD

This list is an attempt to bring together references to the economic material relating to agriculture, which is contained in the State official serial publications received currently in the United States Department of Agriculture. Here may be found market reports, crop reports, both mimeographed and printed, reports of State departments of agriculture and State tax commissions, tobacco sales reports, bulletins which are devoted entirely to advertising the products of the State, as well as the more general official periodicals dealing with the agriculture of a particular State,

The mimeographed crop reports issued by the Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics without State cooperation have not been included. This explains the omission of these crop reports for the States of Arizona, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Utah, and Washington. A few States - Alabama, Indiana, and New Jersey - no longer issue the mimeographed reports or issue them infrequently at irregular intervals.

The statistics found in these State publications are many and varied. They include acreage, production, yield per acre, prices (farm, wholesale, retail, etc.), value, crop conditions, market conditions, cost of production, etc. Information as to the type of statistics contained in each publication has been given in the descriptive note and a detailed index, arranged by commodities, has been included.

Apparent inconsistencies which appear in this index may be explained in part by the fact that different publications use different terms and it was thought better in many cases to use the term as it occurred. Thus, under the heading "Land", will be found sub-heads for both "agricultural" and "farm land" as well as "land in farms".

These publications and the statistics which they contain are peculiarly subject to change. Lack of funds may force the discontinuance of a periodical or bulletin. Statistics collected may vary from year to year. County statistics may be included in one report and only State totals in the next.

This list aims to be complete in so far as the holdings of the United States Department of Agriculture library are concerned. However, it may be that other reports and periodicals are published, which should be included in this group, and which the Department is not receiving. If so, the library will be very glad to have its attention called to them.

Since the stencil was cut and the index to this list compiled, several items which are included have ceased publication. A note to this effect has been appended to each of these.

The adoption of "Puerto Rico" as the official spelling came after the list was compiled. Therefore, "Porto Rico" has been used throughout.

ALABAMA

1. Alabama. Department of Agriculture and Industries.

Alabama farm production [monthly] Montgomery. 2 AllA

Published in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The Library of the United States Department of Agriculture has v.1, no. 1; February, 1928 to date.

This publication supersedes Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Extension Service. Farm Economics.

Each issue contains Prices paid to farmers in Alabama for beef cattle, butter, chickens, corn, cotton, cottonseed, eggs, hay, hogs, potatoes, sweet potatoes, and peanuts. These are obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture. There are also Index numbers of prices paid to farmers in Alabama; and Index of Alabama farm prices and purchasing power.

An early issue of each year contains Estimated acreage harvested, production and value of crops, arranged by counties. This includes cotton, corn, sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, peanuts, oats, sorghum, sugar cane and truck crops.

Another early issue includes Estimated number and value of livestock on farms, and Estimated livestock and livestock products put into consumption, by counties. This includes work stock, milk cows, other cattle, hogs, chickens, and sheep.

There are also short, unsigned articles of general interest in each issue, such as The Banker and Cotton Acreage (v.1, no.3, April, 1928); Readjustment of Crop Acreage (v.4, no.1, October, 1930); Forced Sales of Farm Real Estate (v.4, no.12, September, 1931)

2. Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Bureau of Economic Research and Department of Agricultural Economics.

Alabama economic review; a monthly summary of agricultural, industrial, and financial conditions. Auburn. 280.8 All

The Library of the United States Department of Agriculture has v.1, no. 1, December, 1930 to date.

The Foreword of v.1, no.1, signed by the president, Bradford Knapp, includes the following statement:

"The Alabama Economic Review has been planned at this institution for more than two years past. The principal difficulties in America and in the world today are economic difficulties. In a very definite way agriculture, industry, finance and general business are so closely interwoven that the prosperity or failure of one affects the other.

It is particularly true in Alabama that the prosperity of agriculture affects the local banks, the merchants and, through them affects the banks and merchants at the great central points... We have learned, in these last few months, that industry is affected by the success of agriculture and that agriculture is likewise tremendously dependent upon the buying power of the people and these factors together control the markets of the world.

"This publication is planned to state the facts so that busy business men in the cities and towns of Alabama and the farmer who wants to know may readily consult the most recent and up-to-date information regarding current prices, agricultural production and marketing, the financial situation and trade and industrial conditions. We shall obtain our information not only from the fine cooperation of business men and others in Alabama... but from every available and reliable source, governmental and otherwise."

The Table of Contents has the following divisions: Summary, which includes both national and Alabama economic conditions, Finance, Building and Construction, Industrial Production, Merchandising, and Prices and Taxation.

Each issue contains the following tables:

Alabama farm prices and price indexes, listing beef cattle, butter, chickens, corn, cotton, cottonseed, eggs, hay, hogs, potatoes, sweet potatoes, and peanuts (Compiled from U. S. D. A. reports).

Alabama business statistics, which includes figures for cotton consumption and cotton spinning. Most issues also include separate tables showing bales of cotton consumed and spinning activity.

Price indexes, compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, are included. These consist of wholesale commodity, wholesale food, and retail food prices.

The Annalist index of business activity is reproduced, and there are also miscellaneous statistics occurring in each issue.

The Florida agricultural extension economist. [monthly] Gainesville.
Micrographed. 275.29 F664

The Library of the United States Department of Agriculture has v.1, no. 1, January, 1931 to date.

Issued in cooperation with Florida State College for Women and the United States Department of Agriculture.

v.1, no. 1 carries this statement:

"This [publication]... is presented in the hope that the information it contains will be of value to the farm people and others of Florida...

"Among those who will contribute to the issues will be the Extension specialists in agricultural economics, College and Experiment Station workers, students, and others...

"These specialists plan to work with county agents, cooperative organizations, and others to the end that practices which tend to balance the farm program, reduce the cost of production, or increase the price to the producers, may be recommended. With these things in view, a number of Enterprise accounts are now being kept by cooperating farmers and summarized by the specialists.

"The Extension economists hope to aid cooperatives and prospective cooperatives in obtaining and interpreting information, advising as to organizations and set-up, re-organization, aiding in setting up the simplest and most satisfactory account systems, advising on credit, and rendering similar services. For non-cooperatives, aid will be given through county agents in assembling, grading, standardizing, transporting, and otherwise preparing farm and home products for market.

"Annual and seasonal outlook reports covering farm crops and livestock will be issued, together with other economic information of general interest."

Each issue contains two signed articles. Representative selections are, Development of Cooperative Associations in Florida, by M. A. Brooker, and H. G. Hamilton; (v.1, no. 8, August, 1931)

Farm Prices of Florida Hogs, by D. E. Timmons (v.1, no.9, September, 1931) The Value of Livestock Products Produced on Florida Farms, by J. E. Turlington (v.1, no. 11, November, 1931) The Present Agricultural Situation and Future Farmers Plans (v.2, no. 1, January, 1932) Most of the articles carry tables and charts in illustration.
